

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

In some glad way I know thereof,
A garden glows down in my heart,
Wherein I meet and often part,
With many an ancient tale of love—
A thousand garden hanks with bloom,
And trellised with clematis,
In which a rose climbs to a room,
A balcony one mass of vine,
Din, haunted of perfume—
A balcony whereon she gleams,
The soft desire of all dreams,
And smiles and bends like Juliet,
Year after year,
While to her side, all dewy wet,
A rose stuck in his ear,
Love climbs to draw her near.

And in another way I know,
Down in my soul a graveyard lies,
Wherein I meet in ghostly wise,
With many an ancient tale of woe—
A graveyard of the Capulets,
Deep-vaulted with ancestral gloom,
Through whose dark yews the moonlight
Jests.

On many a wildly carved tomb,
That my mildew frets—
A graveyard where the Soul's Desire
Sleeps, pale-entombed, and kneeling by her.

Love, like that helpless Montague,
Year after year,
Weary and worn and wild of hue,
Within her sepulchre,
Falls bleeding on her bier.

Elba Council, Royal Arcanum, held its monthly meeting last Tuesday night. Every member present was bitterly opposed to the great injustice that the Supreme Council wishes to impose on the members. They appointed a committee of three members from Elba Council to confer with every council in the State of Virginia, also a committee to communicate with the Supreme Council to investigate this great injustice.

SORROW.

By AUBREY THOMAS DE VERE.

Another selection from this writer's works, his portrait, autograph and biographical sketch have already been printed in this series.

COUNT each affliction, whether light or brave,
God's messenger sent down to thee; do thou
With courtesy receive him; rise and bow;
And, ere his shadow pass thy threshold, crave
Permission first his heavenly feet to lave;
Then lay before him all thou hast. Allow
No cloud of passion to usurp thy brow,
Or mar thy hospitality; no wave
Of mortal tumult to obliterate
The soul's marmoreal calmness. Grief should be
Like joy, majestic, equable, sedate,
Confirming, cleansing, raising, making free;
Strong to consume small troubles; to commend
Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

OYSTERS GROW
ON BEER BOTTLES

Muscles Inhabit Inside and Grow Larger Than Mouth of Bottle.

A GOOD Y. M. C. A. WORKER

James Moore is Doing Great Things for the Good of the Cause.

(Special From The Times-Dispatch.)

WEST POINT, VA., June 23.—While oystering in James River, Captain George E. Williams, of this town, caught a beer bottle with seven fully developed oysters formed in a bunch on the lower side. Four of them were very large, and there were at the least a dozen beginning to form in other places on the bottle and on the full grown oysters. Inside were several mussels, which were too large to pass through the neck of the bottle. To verify this, Captain Williams has in his possession the bottle with the shells still attached.

Y. M. C. A. WORK.

Mr. James Moore, a young man of West Point, has done and is still doing a very creditable work for the improvement and advancement of the Y. M. C. A. By personal efforts he has put an organ in the hall and is meeting the payments promptly. He has bought a photograph and gives impromptu concerts and takes collections for the good of the cause. The Luey family, of Richmond, gave an entertainment under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. in their hall Friday night.

Mrs. Flora Roy, of Atlanta, Ga., widow of the late Dr. Augustus A. Roy, is visiting friends and relatives in Virginia. She is now a guest of Judge A. B. Evans, at Church View.

Mr. Hugh Fox, a native of King and Queen county, now a successful business man of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, is on a visit in this section.

Mrs. William Haynes and others came down on the steamer Elm City Thursday from King and Queen counties seeking information from those who have been so successful in erecting the monument in King William, in honor of the Confederate dead of this county. Movements are on foot to erect a monument in King and Queen county. Mrs. C. G. Babb, of Stevensville, was also in the party.

The colored people throughout this section are greatly excited over the excursion from West Point to Norfolk next Tuesday. There will be a fine band of music and a plenty of eat and drink. All on a fine excursion in many respects it will be as enjoyable as "general muster before the war."

AN ANNUAL VISIT.

A great many of the old inhabitants of West Point, who live in Norfolk and the section around there, will visit West Point Sunday. Annually these people run an excursion to this place for no other purpose than to visit their old home and friends.

Beach Park, in spite of the very hot weather and the surging masses of perspiring humanity, has been able to furnish comfortable resting places, good meals, cool breezes and amusements during the week.

Wonderfully good order has prevailed all during the season. Many visitors are in West Point, and especially in West Point, and respect to children and tiny infants, especially the latter, who luxuriating in a single garment, roll on the green grass in the shade and coolly and peacefully.

The allies' losses were 18,000 of which many of the Piedmontese corps of 25,000 lost 4,000.

MANN IS STRONG IN ALBEMARLE

The People Take More Interest in Gubernatorial Contest Than Senator.

TEMPERANCE CROWD AROUSED

The Other Candidates Underrate Judge Mann's Strength, Montague Following.

(Special From a Staff Correspondent.)

CHARLOTTESVILLE, ALBEMARLE COUNTY, VA., June 23.—The people of Albemarle, the home of Senator Martin, appear to be, as a rule, more interested in the gubernatorial contest than in the outcome of the campaign for the senatorship. That seems a remarkable statement, but it is true. The majority of the people of Charlottesville and the county believe Senator Martin will be beyond doubt re-elected. He will carry his home county by a large majority, of course, but I have not heard a man predict anything remotely approaching certainty that any particular candidate would carry the city and county.

In plain English, Judge Mann has the Charlottesville and Albemarle county politicians guessing. When I was here two months ago, it was generally predicted that Mr. Swanson would carry the city and county. A month ago, after Lieutenant Governor Willard had visited Albemarle once or twice, his friends here (and there are a good many of them) thought he stood a fair chance to carry the city and possibly the county.

To-day I have heard more men express the opinion that Judge Mann's chances were the best than I have heard say that either Mr. Swanson or Captain Willard would likely get a majority of the vote of either the city or the county. Judge Mann has not spoken here. It is predicted that when he shall have done so, it will be developed that he is very strong.

Conditions in Albemarle are entirely different as regards the governorship fight from what they are in Orange and Culpeper. The Mann law has not closed a single saloon in either of the first two counties. In Albemarle every one of the saloons in the country districts (and there were a number of them, including several places of pretty shady reputation) has been closed by the operation of the law of which Judge Mann was the author. The whiskey trade in Albemarle is now confined exclusively to Charlottesville.

AROUSSED.

As a result of this change of conditions in the country districts, the temperance sentiment, which is quiescent in those sections where the Mann law has not closed up saloons, is aroused here, and there are many men actively at work for the Nottoway candidate.

I do not predict that Judge Mann will carry the county, but if he makes the fight expected of him, he will come close to it. I confess to surprise at discovering in the course of a few days the strength Judge Mann has in this section of Virginia.

The other two candidates for the governorship are believed to underrate Judge Mann's strength.

Possibly the friends of Senator Martin are also guilty of underrating Governor Montague's strength in Albemarle. I talked with a man here to-day, who told me he had bet a substantial sum that Governor Montague would not get a hundred votes in Charlottesville, and that he would not carry a precinct in the county. In my judgment, and the opinion is based upon those of well-informed citizens, and personal investigation, that man is going to lose his money. Governor Montague will receive considerably more than fifty votes in Charlottesville. He may not carry a county precinct, but it is said that in some sections of Albemarle he has a considerable following. This is understood to be true of the Albemarle neighborhood, for instance. He was strong at Ivy, but Martin men in Charlottesville say Senator Martin will receive nearly every vote cast in the precinct.

GOVERNOR MONTAGUE'S STRENGTH.

Governor Montague carried Albemarle by a large majority when he was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination four years ago. His friends made an especially strong fight for him in this county and won handsomely. A great many of these friends of four years ago are for the other man for the senatorship now, but they are finding the work

THE SMALLPOX.

Boydton Well Satisfied With Progress of Suspects.

(Special From The Times-Dispatch.)

BOYDTON, VA., June 23.—The smallpox situation is most satisfactory, and in a few days the whole matter will be a thing of the past. I was told by the town sergeant this morning that several of the suspects, who have been in quarantine two and a half miles from town, would be turned loose to-morrow, and the whole number would be discharged by Wednesday, unless some one of them broke out with the disease before that time.

There has been only three persons in all who have broken out in the town, two colored and one white person.

There has been no one in town with smallpox for over two weeks, and all
